

The Jay Mountain Trail is a 7.8-mile round trip hike in the Adirondacks, featuring an initial moderate forest ascent. The difficulty increases after the first scenic overlook, where the path continues along an exposed ridge. This section involves rock scrambles and can be difficult to navigate, with hikers following rock cairns to the summit. The full hike, which can be challenging, offers expansive views along the open ridgeline.

Map created by Andy Arthur on 10/24/2025 in QGIS 3.44.3-Solothurn. Contains NYS GIS and DEC data with additional campsites added by Andy. More maps at andyarthur.org.

